

The Richard Peterson Orchestra

Richard Peterson is a Pacific Northwest institution, a well-known savvy Seattle trumpet player/piano player/composer. His music is heavily influenced by the 1950's and 60's television soundtrack work of the Columbia and Ziv music production companies.

Richard released his first 45rpm single "Want to Be In The States" in 1976. He advanced his career by playing trumpet outside the football and baseball games for years. He has made records with many Seattle music celebrities. His debut full-length album, "Richard Peterson", was released in 1982. In 1983, he released his second album, produced by Peter Barnes, from which the Stone Temple Pilots placed a track on their album "Purple", which sold over 4 million copies.

"Big City Dick: Richard Peterson's First Movie", a documentary about Mr. Peterson, was released in 2004. It won the audience award at the Slamdance film festival in Park City Utah. His penchant for early TV music gained him the friendship of Hollywood actor Jeff Bridges via his father Lloyd Bridges of 1950's "Sea Hunt" fame. Based on this enduring friendship, Richard often opens for Jeff's band "The Abiders" when they play the Seattle area.

His new record is appropriately titled, Seven, and features The Richard Peterson Orchestra (which is all Richard). It is the culmination of his many influences and years of composing music. Seven features Richard's compositions, his playing on piano, horns, synth oboe, bass, drums and harp as well as a variety of vocalists and a violin player. Both true and new fans of Mr. Peterson's work are certain to enjoy Seven. It is Richard's masterpiece.

Green Monkey Records is proud to present the works of the amazing Richard Peterson. Richard will impress you with the depth and clarity of his astonishing new masterpiece, Seven. We are confident you will marvel at this brilliant new offering. Please give it a listen!
